

ZELDA CLOETE

HEAD OF VISUAL ARTS DEPARTMENT

Zelda Cloete joined St Alban's College as the Head of Visual Art in September 2016. After she matriculated, she completed a 4-year teaching degree, as well as an Honours degree and Masters degree in Teaching at the University of Johannesburg.

Zelda taught for nearly three years at Princess High School, before she worked at Sanlam for seven years, keeping herself busy with the training and development of staff. During that time, she also completed her Honours degree in Psychology and her Psychometric internship. Zelda was also involved at the Sinoville Crisis Centre as a volunteer assisting people with different needs. Zelda pursued her interest in child development through practising motor development and child kinetics for 2 years.

Zelda decided to follow her life-long dream of becoming an artist and art teacher. She enrolled at UNISA for her Visual Arts degree and while still studying, she was employed by the Department of Art History, Visual Art and Musicology. She started off assisting new students with the process of studying art through Unisa. Thereafter, she occupied the role of Postgraduate research assistant while starting on her Master's degree in Visual Art. Zelda never let go of the teacher inside her and filled in at Laerskool Lynnwood for several years. She practised as an art educator for scholars and adults from her home-based studio for 3 years.

Zelda is a practising artist and has exhibited in many recognised contemporary art exhibitions:

She believes that Visual Art is an integral part of every human being and is essential for learning skills needed for the future where automation will impact the workforce. Some of these skills include critical thinking, decision making, innovation, problem-solving, risk-taking and invention. She loves hiking, the outdoors, travelling, spending time with her family, reading and visiting as many art exhibitions as she can.
